FSG Provides High-End Networking Shine for Luxury Hotel Property

Challenge

When Dutch real estate investment company Wereldhave contracted to develop the luxury Eilan Hotel and Spa on San Antonio's rapidly-growing northwest side in 2011, the project owner knew its new property would need to offer the very latest in technology amenities for its exclusive clientele. With a focus on delivering cutting-edge voice, data, video, and security networking for the property, Wereldhave contracted directly with FSG's San Antonio branch and their Tero Technologies network designers.

Solution

High-end outfitting was the goal of this project from the very beginning. As such, FSG and Tero assigned their most experienced technicians to the job. With high ceilings and unique construction design features, the project tested the skills of everyone on the FSG team. The ground-up work scope included all hotel common areas, including the fantastic outdoor and pool spaces, as well as guest rooms. FSG provided in-room cabling, emergency phone systems, security networking, connectivity for an elaborate system of speakers throughout the property, and even installed televisions within guest rooms and at other locations.

As an example of the opulent amenities on tap at the Eilan, one area of focus for FSG involved the conceptualization and outfitting of an interactive dance studio. FSG's networking and cabling enabled live, one-on-one ballroom dance lessons between guests and professional dancers located primarily in California, but generally from other locations all over the world. The Eilan's interactive dance studio required technology solutions that only a few places could match.

Result

The Eilan Hotel opened to rave reviews from local citizens and visitors to San Antonio alike. At the time of its opening, the facility quickly became known as the go-to luxury property for both discriminating travelers and locals wanting a special getaway experience close to home. FSG and Tero completed the project work scope on time and to the satisfaction of the property owner, and everyone associated with the project understood that the work they completed on the Eilan Hotel was among the very best work being done anywhere.
